Magnetism: A non-contact force

Posted by sat on Mon, 2014-09-01 23:46

This online resource provides strategies for teaching about magnetism as a non-contact force. Magnets pull or push on objects without touching them. The underpinning science concepts include:

- Magnets are only attracted to a few ‘magnetic’ metals and not all matter,
- Magnets are attracted to and repel other magnets.

Tags:
magnetic force
contact and noncontact forces
magnetism
non-contact forces

External Link:
Magnetism : A non-contact force

Source Category: Educational Publication Date:
July, 2017
Fundamental forces

Source URL: https://assist.asta.edu.au/resource/2471/magnetism-non-contact-force